

Book a Le Boat break before 31st May and save up to 25%

With temperatures set to soar and prices that can't be ignored, a holiday on Britain's beautiful waterways has never looked so tempting

Norfolk is commonly known to receive the least amount of rainfall of any county in Britain. This, together with weather forecasters predicting that temperatures could reach the late twenties during the last weeks of May, makes for the perfect excuse to book a holiday on the water.

The Norfolk Broads, an area of great natural beauty and a haven for wildlife, is one of England's most popular cruising grounds. Renowned for its rural lifestyle and synonymous with images of families having fun on the water, this is a great place to simply relax and enjoy an altogether slower pace of life.

Le Boat also offers boating holidays in a further 20 destinations around Europe including Italy, France, Germany and Ireland.

Book before the 31st May and spend one week cruising the Norfolk Broads for a week from as little as £162 per person
